

Abstract of the disclosure

The present invention relates to a client, server, and method for editing a multimedia file using a network. The invention includes a client for uploading the multimedia file and a multimedia editing command file, as well as a server for editing the multimedia file uploaded from the client by using its own resources in accordance with the multimedia editing command file.